ABSTRACT

Data held in physical memory, such as random access memory, in a computing device

5   is defragmented when a system operating code null thread, which is used for placing the computing device into a reduced power mode when no other thread in the system is ready to run, is scheduled to run.

No figure